

ImpactAcademy eLearning Module 1

Transcript - 1.1.1. Welcome

Welcome to hivve's ImpactAcademy eLearning course, "Learning How to Identify, Evidence and Narrate Research Impact"!

You are beginning the first module in the four-part series - "What is Research Impact?"

Throughout this module, we'll explore the fundamentals of research impact, including its significance, historical development, and the various frameworks used to measure and report it. By the end of this module, you'll have a solid foundation to understand why research impact is crucial and how it has evolved over time.

This first course comprises 5 sections and each of these consists of several lessons. A lesson will usually include a video with the main content of that lesson, an accompanying summary and any other relevant materials like a further reading list. In the final section, you will also be given a quiz in order to test your knowledge - which you'll need to pass to be able to access module 2.

As many others have previously gone through the course, and many more will follow, feel free to contribute any thoughts on the lessons in the feedback form provided at the end of the course. In this way, we hope to keep building on and improving our knowledge base while providing learners with an opportunity to reflect as well as learn from each other.

Every time you finish a section, make sure you press the 'Mark Complete' button at the bottom of the page as this will mark your progress throughout the course. You'll see that every time you finish a lesson, the progress bar on the right side will increase, so you can track how far along in the course you are.

Now let's get started! Have fun and good luck.
